

Editor's Pick:

Huggable Nightlight

The European-based company Kaloo is known for its cuddly, adorable stuffed animals. Their newest addition, the Soft Nightlight Kaloo, will become your tot's favorite playmate during the day and his cuddly buddy at night. This 10-inch toy is made of snuggly cotton velour and comes in three versions: a multi-colored bear, a blue bear and a pink rabbit. What makes it so unique, though, is the softball-sized, silicone, rechargeable light that fits in its belly and gives off a soft glow. You can use this sweet stuffed animal as a night-light on your baby's dresser until she's big enough to take it to bed with her (never put a child to bed with a stuffed animal until she's at least 1 year old). When she gets older, this Kaloo will comfort her at night and become her huggable nightlight. The stuffed animal can be machine washed and dried, and each one comes with a wall charger for the light, which glows for about 7 hours. Suggested retail price is $59, and you can find them at Saks and Neiman Marcus stores, or online at www.Oompa.com. — MB

